

WASHINGTON, D.C. ,Congressman John W. Olver (D-1st District) has signed a letter to President Bush.

"Despite assertions by the president and his administration to the contrary, Congress has not given authorization for the NSA to conduct warrantless surveillance of Americans."

Three days after September 11, 2001, Congress passed the Authorization for Use of Military Force (AUMF).

The NSA surveillance program remains largely secret due to its highly classified nature. Nevertheless, Congress has the right to know.

Olver added, "Despite the clear legal uncertainty as to whether this kind of domestic surveillance program is authorized by the AUMF, Congress has the right to know."

These acts of surveillance have generated the concern of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act ("FISA").

The text of the letter is below.

January 31, 2006
President George W. Bush
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

Seven days after our country was attacked on September 11, 2001, Congress exercised its authority under the AUMF to authorize the President to use all necessary and appropriate force against those responsible for the September 11 attacks.

During your press conference on December 19, 2005, you stated that you were granted the legal authority to conduct warrantless surveillance of Americans.

The NSA Surveillance program remains largely secret due to its highly classified nature. However, Congress has the right to know.

At no point during the floor debate of the AUMF Resolution was there any discussion that the authorization was intended to grant the President the authority to conduct warrantless surveillance of Americans.

It is our duty to uphold the provisions of the U.S. Constitution, preserve the system of checks and balances, and ensure that the President is not granted the authority to conduct warrantless surveillance of Americans.

Sincerely,
